Subject: Your opportunity to ask a question of a GQT panelist 🌻

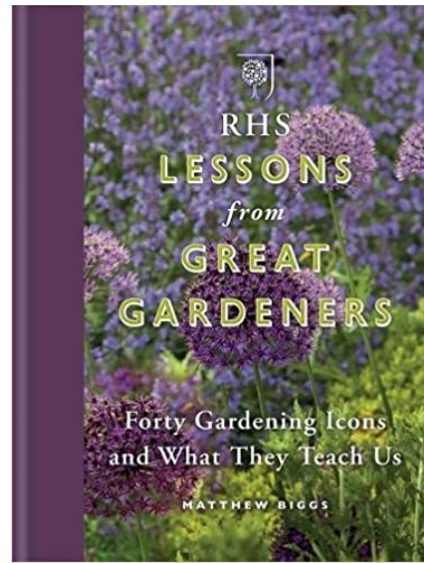

To: <emshorticultural@gmail.com>

Ever wanted to know what really goes on behind the scenes at Gardeners' Question Time? Or have a question that you are longing to ask a panelist?

Now is your chance to hear a lecture by, and put your questions to Matthew Biggs !

Matthew Biggs is well known as a panelist on Gardeners' Question Time and we are very privileged that he has agreed to be Sussex Plant Heritage's speaker on Saturday 17 October at 2.30pm.

Gardener (he trained at Kew), writer and broadcaster, he has written or contributed to over ten books on subjects ranging from houseplants to unusual vegetables and on historic subjects including 'Secrets of Great Botanists'. Matthew's most recent book is RHS A Nation in Bloom: Celebrating the People, Plants & Places of the Royal Horticultural Society. He will talk to us mentioning many of the lessons learned from great gardeners.

Great news - Plant Heritage are making tickets available to you, our gardening friends and members of horticultural groups in Sussex. You can join in for just £5 (and this helps fund our vital work). Please do pass this email onto your fellow members or anyone who may be interested!

Due to Covid, the talk will be a virtual Zoom talk, so you don't even have to leave home. If you haven't used Zoom on your computer, tablet or phone before, you are not alone and it is really easy to do. Gill Groombridge is very happy to help so do contact her using the information below.

In summary...

The talk is on Saturday 17th October at 2.30pm.
